

CEO Heinrich Bossard killed in plane crash

Zug, 12/15/2004

Heinrich Bossard, CEO of Bossard Group, was killed in a plane crash during a holiday trip to New Zealand. His wife Silvia, also on board the light aircraft, survived with injuries. No further details have been made available so far. The board of directors, the executive committee and all Bossard employees, are deeply grieved by this new tragic loss that the Bossard families have suffered.

The date of the funeral service will be announced later. The board of directors has initiated all the measures necessary to ensure management continuity in both the short and the long term. Bossard employees and the public will be informed in due course.

May we ask you not to request further information at the present time.
